1. You didn't use your real name. Facebook will find you and spit you out.
2. You joined too many groups. (The maximum limit is 200 groups per user.)
3. You posted too many messages on a wall or in a group. E.g. Guy K had his account disabled—in his case for “excessive evangelism.”
4. You posted in too many groups, too many user's walls. (That's what spammers do, silly.)
5. You friended too many people. (Not so long ago this was a prime cause of disabled accounts, but Facebook has instituted a maximum of 5000 friends that should protect you from yourself.)
6. Your school/ -organization affiliation is doubtful.
7. You're poking too many people. (Beware the odd FB app that pokes on your behalf.)
8. You advertised your app on wallposts.
9. You used duplicate text in multiple messages.
10. You are a cow, dog, or library.
11. You are under 18 years old and not part of a High School group.
12. You wrote offensive content.
13. You scraped information off Facebook. E.g. Facebook bots disabled Robert Scoble's account
